Let's Start!

Let's review!

Learning Outcome

Accurately use information involving apologies, thanks, suggestions and invitations in communicative situations.

Ask your partner:

- What are your favorite things to do on the weekend?
- Are there things you never do?
- Do you prefer to spend the weekend with your friends or by yourself?

Can Do Statements

- I can talk about food and drink.
- I can accept and refuse invitations.
- I can make suggestions.
- I can express preference and make invitations.

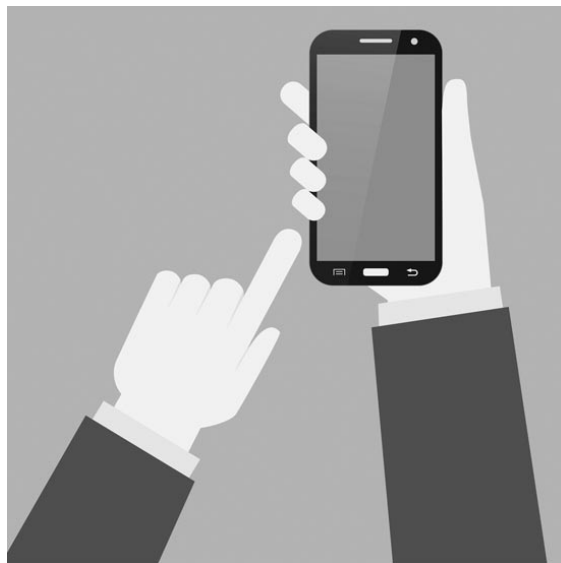

Let's Explore!

John and Sally are late ... Vanessa checks her phone. She gets a text. What does it say?

* A "text" is a message that you write to someone with your phone.

Instructions: Read the text aloud.

- Vanessa: Hmmm ... John and Sally are late.
Peter: Maybe they would like to watch a blockbuster.
Vanessa: Ha ha. Maybe Sally feels like watching a romantic comedy?
Peter: That's depressing. Hey, is it your phone?
Vanessa: Yes. It's from John.
Peter: What does it say?
Vanessa: "Hi guys! Thanks for the offer, but I would prefer to stay in tonight. I have soccer practice tomorrow. I try to go every other day. Sorry about that! John"
Peter: I have a message too ... "Hey! I would love to come, but I don't want to watch a spy thriller. Maybe next time!"
Vanessa: Great ... Well, let's order pizza.
Peter: Sure! A vegetarian pizza with extra cheese toppings? My treat!
Vanessa: Thanks.
Peter: My pleasure! You know I eat pizza most of the time.

Let's Practice!

How is the plan for the evening? All good?

Learning Points

Making Plans for the Evening

You use modals or the simple present tense to make offers and invitations, such as "Would you like to ... ?" or "Do you feel like ... ?"

You can also use modals and the simple present tense to accept or decline invitations.

Making Offers	Accepting	Declining
Do you feel like ... ? Would you like to ... ? We should ...	Sure! Great idea! That sounds good! I would love to!	I would love to, but ... Thanks for the offer, but ... No, thanks. I don't feel like ...

In polite conversations, it is important to thank people when you accept their invitation.

	Thanking People	Responding to Thanks
Formal	Thank you so much! You shouldn't have! This is really kind/sweet of you!	My pleasure. You're very welcome. Don't mention it!
Informal	Thanks! Cheers!	Sure. No problem. No worries. It's nothing.

You use expressions like "I'm sorry" to apologize if you refuse an invitation.

Apologizing	Responding to Apologies
Sorry/So sorry ... I'm sorry to hear that. I apologize ...	Don't worry about it! It's okay. That's okay. No problem. Maybe next time!

You can use verbs with infinitives to be more specific about the reason for accepting or refusing an offer.

Examples:

- I'm sorry. I can't make it because I have to go to the doctor.
- I would love to come to the party.
