Let's Start!

Pronunciation Spot: A date at Pizzario's for John and Sally?

Learning Outcome

Accurately use information about food, eating and meals in communicative situations.

Can Do Statements

- I can say and use the long o sound.
- I can make invitations.
- I can talk about food and drink.

Ask your partner:

- Do you like pizza or pasta? What other kind of Italian food do you like?
- What do you like on your pizza? Why?

Let's Explore!

Listen to John and Sally's telephone conversation. Are they going out for dinner?
Does John ask for a rain check?

* A "rain check" is a promise to do or give something later.

Instructions: Read the text aloud.

John: Hi, Sally. How are you?

Sally: Hey, John. What's up?

John: Would you like to go out tonight for dinner? There's a new pizza place near my house.

Sally: Do you mean Pizzario's?

John: Yes, their pizza is really good. They also make great panini!

Sally: I hear the owners are from Rome, Italy.

John: That's cool. I know you would really like it. It's the most popular pizza place in town.

Sally: Is anyone else going?

John: Just us. Vanessa is going to the movies and Peter is studying.

Sally: Ahhh ... Actually, I'm not feeling very well.

John: What's wrong?

Sally: I have a headache ... sorry. Can we all go out another time?

John: Can I get you something for it?

Sally: No, it's OK.

John: Alright, maybe another night. I'll phone you on the weekend. Can I have a rain check?

Let's Practice!

Let's have a toast to the long o sound! Would you like to go out for dinner?

Learning Points

Modals to Make Invitations and Offers

You use the modals would, could and can to offer to do things for people or to invite them to do something.

You use could/would + subject + like to make invitations and offers.

You use can + subject + get to make less formal invitations and offers.

Modal	Subject
Would	you	like	to go to Pizzario's for dinner?
Would	Sally	like	some more pizza?
Could	we	go	to that new pizza place?
Can	I	get	you a drink?
Can	I	get	you a chair?

The Long O Sound

A long vowel in a word sounds like the name of the letter.

A single vowel found at the end of a syllable or word may also sound like the name of the letter (make the long vowel sound). Example: be, go.

When there are two vowels together, the first vowel generally uses the long vowel sound.

The second vowel generally stays silent. Example: rope, boat.

Examples:

- Long o sound as in: oh, phone, ghost, pillow, roast.
